NOTICE OF MOTION

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

3 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 12(b)(3) and 4 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a), on January 19, 2012 at 10:00 a.m. or as soon thereafter as the 5 matter may be heard, in the Courtroom of the Honorable Maria-Elena James, United 6 States District Court for the Northern District of California, located at 450 Golden 7 Gate Ave, San Francisco, California, 95102, defendants Taco Bell Corp. and Taco
8 Bell of America, Inc. (collectively "Defendants" or "Taco Bell") will and hereby do 9 move the Court to dismiss, or in the alternative to stay or transfer, the action brought 10 against it by named plaintiff Christopher Duggan ("Duggan"). This motion is 11 brought on the grounds that a prior action involving the same issues, the same 12 named parties, and overlapping putative class members was filed first and is 13 currently pending in the Eastern District of California. No good cause exists not to 14 follow the "first to file" rule and this action should be dismissed, or in the alternative 15 stayed or transferred. The motion is based on this Notice and the accompanying 16 Memorandum of Points and Authorities, Defendants' Request for Judicial Notice, 17 and supporting exhibits thereto, any reply papers as may be filed, the pleadings and 18 records on file in this action, the argument of counsel at the hearing; and other such 19 matters as may be judicially noticed or come before the Court at the hearing on this 20 matter.

STATEMENT OF RELIEF SOUGHT

22 1. That this Court employ the first-to-file rule and dismiss, or in the alternative 23 stay or transfer, the instant matter on the grounds that a prior action involving the 24 same issues, the same named parties, and overlapping putative class members was 25 filed first and is pending in the U.S.D.C. for the Eastern District of California.

26 2. Alternatively, Defendants seek to transfer venue to the Eastern District
27 pursuant to the Court's broad discretionary power to transfer cases between districts 28 in the interest of justice under 28 U.S.C. section 1404(a)

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

3 In filing this action, Plaintiff Christopher Duggan ("Duggan") and his counsel, 4 Initiative Legal Group, are blatantly forum shopping and ignoring the well 5 established "first to file" doctrine, despite their explicit knowledge of, and 6 involvement in, the ongoing and duplicative action, In re Taco Bell, currently 7 pending in the Eastern District. In this action, Duggan and his counsel, on behalf of 8 a putative class, allege the same harm, seek to adjudicate the same issues and ask for 9 the same remedies that allegedly arise out of the same nucleus of facts as they are 10 currently litigating in the In re Taco Bell action. In fact, Duggan is not only a 11 member of the In re Taco Bell class, but is a named plaintiff and purported class
12 representative. To confound things further, Initiative Legal Group, Duggan's 13 counsel here, is the interim lead class counsel in the In re Taco Bell action.

14 Duggan and his counsel intentionally seek to subject Defendants to the 15 prospect of defending the same case in different district courts, obviously with the 16 clear intent to seek a "better forum" for themselves. Such knowing conduct is an 17 abuse of the judicial process, a waste of judicial time and resources, and is precisely 18 why the Ninth Circuit adopted the "first-to-file" doctrine.

19 The "first-to-file" doctrine is applied by courts to avoid duplicative lawsuits.
20 It permits a district court to dismiss, stay, or transfer a second-filed lawsuit in 21 deference to the court presiding over the first-filed action. The rule promotes 22 consistent application of rulings made by district courts and serves the policies of 23 comity and judicial efficiency. In addition, it avoids the potential for conflicting 24 decisions. It has long been the policy of federal courts to adhere to the "first-to-file" 25 rule in absence of extraordinary circumstances.

26 Here, the absence of "extraordinary circumstances" is clear. In re Taco Bell 27 was filed first. The parties are the same (Taco Bell Corp. and Taco Bell of America, 28 Inc. are the defendants and Duggan is a named plaintiff in both cases). Moreover,

1 the central dispute in both matters, whether non-exempt employees were properly 2 paid wages and reimbursed for expenses as required by California law, is identical.
 3 There is no question that the "first-to-file" rule applies to this case and there are no 4 extraordinary circumstances. As such, the Court should dismiss, or in the 5 alternative, stay the action or transfer the action to the Eastern District.

6 Alternatively, Defendants seek to transfer venue to the Eastern District
 7 pursuant to the Court's broad discretionary power to transfer cases between districts 8 in the interest of justice under 28 U.S.C. section 1404(a). This action could have 9 been brought in the Eastern District and should be transferred to that district because 10 it already is handling the In re Taco Bell case, and there is no reason why this Court 11 should be required to reinvent the wheel by starting with this case from scratch.
 12 Thus, if not dismissed or stayed, this action should be transferred to the Eastern 13 District for coordination with In re Taco Bell.

14 II. RELEVANT FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

15 A. Duggan's Employment with Taco Bell

16 Plaintiff Christopher Duggan initially worked for Defendants as a non-exempt 17 hourly employee from October 2007 to August 2008. (Request for Judicial Notice, 18 ¶ 1, Ex. 1, ¶ 41 at 12:9-11.) Duggan renewed his employment with Defendants as a 19 non-exempt hourly employee, in April 2009. (RJN, ¶ 2, Ex. 2, ¶ 24.)

20 B. Duggan's First Lawsuit Against Taco Bell

21 On November 29, 2010, former employee Teresa Nave filed a putative class
 22 action lawsuit against Taco Bell of America, Inc. and Taco Bell Corp. (RJN, Ex. 3.)
 23 The lawsuit, entitled Nave v. Taco Bell of America, Inc., et al. Eastern District Case
 24 No. 10-CV-02222-OWW-DLB (the "Nave Class Action"), alleges that Taco Bell 25 violated a number of California state wage and hour laws. (Id.) In that complaint, 26 Ms. Nave seeks to represent a putative class consisting of current and former non-27 exempt hourly Taco Bell employees who worked for Taco Bell in California.
 28 Specially, Ms. Nave alleges that Taco Bell failed to pay her, and putative class

1 members, all accrued and unused vacation pay at separation, and failed to provide 2 them with rest periods in accordance with California law. (Id.) Ms. Nave further 3 alleges that she and putative class members are owed statutory "waiting time" 4 penalties for failure to pay all wages due at separation of employment and she seeks 5 restitution of all funds allegedly withheld under California Business and Professions
 6 Code sections 17200, et seq. (Id.)

7 On November 29, 2010, Ms. Nave filed a Notice of Related Case, in which 8 she related the Nave Class Action to the putative class action lawsuit In re Taco Bell 9 Wage and Hour Actions ("In re Taco Bell") pending in the Eastern District of 10 California, Case No. CV-F-07-1314 OWW-DLB. (RJN, ¶ 4, Ex. 4.) Ms. Nave
 11 represented to the Court that the Nave Class Action is related to In re Taco Bell 12 because it involves the same defendants (Taco Bell Corp. and Taco Bell of America, 13 Inc.), it arises from the same or substantially similar transactions, occurrences and 14 events, or involves similar or identical claims, and calls for a determination of the 15 same or substantially similar questions of law and fact. (RJN, Ex. 4, 2:1-11.)

16 On December 9, 2010, Ms. Nave filed a First Amended Complaint, adding 17 current Taco Bell employee Christopher Duggan, the named plaintiff in the instant 18 action, as a named plaintiff in the Nave Class Action. (RJN, Ex. 3.) The original 19 Complaint was not otherwise amended and the causes of action remained the same.

20 On December 14, 2010, pursuant to a stipulation of the parties, the Eastern 21 District entered an order consolidating the Nave Class Action with In re Taco Bell, 22 pursuant to the Court's June 9, 2009, Pretrial Order Regarding Consolidation of 23 Pending Actions and Appointment of Initiative Legal Group LLP As Interim Lead 24 Counsel. (RJN, Ex. 4 - May 19, 2009 Memorandum of Decision and Order 25 Granting Defendants' Motion for Consolidation.) Initiative Legal Group LLP, 26 interim lead counsel in the In re Taco Bell matter, is Duggan's counsel in the instant 27 case.

28 On May 17, 2011, Initiative Legal Group filed the First Amended

1 Consolidated Complaint in the In re Taco Bell action. As set forth in that FAC, 2 Duggan, and other named plaintiffs, seek individual and class-wide relief for the 3 following alleged violations, which include, but are not limited to:

4 ▪ Violation of Labor Code § 1194 (Unpaid Minimum Wages) for "All non-exempt 5 hourly-paid employees of [DEFENDANTS . . .] from September 7, 2003 until 6 the resolution of this lawsuit;"

7 ▪ Violation of California Labor Code §§ 2800 and 2802 (Unreimbursed Business 8 Expenses, including but not limited to "costs of required shoes") for "All non-9 exempt hourly-paid employees of [DEFENDANTS . . .] who incurred business-10 related expenses and costs [including but not limited to "costs of required 11 shoes"] that were not reimbursed from September 7, 2003 until the resolution of 12 this lawsuit;"

13 ▪ Violation of California Labor Code §§ 201 and 202 (Non-Payment of Wages 14 Upon Termination) for "All non-exempt hourly-paid employees of 15 [DEFENDANTS . . .] who were not timely tendered their wages upon 16 termination of employment from September 7, 2004 until the resolution of this 17 lawsuit;" and,

18 ▪ Violation of California Business and Professions Code §§ 17200, et seq. seeking 19 "restitution of the wages withheld and retained by Defendants during a period 20 that commences on September 7, 2003" and which extends until the resolution 21 of the lawsuit.

22 (RJN, Ex. 1.)

23 C. Duggan's Second Lawsuit Against Taco Bell – This Instant Action –
 24 Duggan Class Action

25 On September 21, 2011, nine months after his first lawsuit was consolidated 26 with In re Taco Bell, Initiative Legal Group filed a putative class action complaint 27 against Taco Bell Corp. and Taco Bell of America, Inc. in the San Francisco County
 28 Superior Court on his behalf ("Duggan Class Action"). (RJN, Ex. 2.)

1 In the Duggan Class Action, Duggan seeks to represent a putative class consisting of 2 current and former non-exempt hourly Taco Bell employees who worked for Taco 3 Bell in California since September 21, 2007. Moreover, as demonstrated in the 4 chart below, the Duggan Class Action, alleges substantially similar, indeed nearly 5 identical, causes of action as that alleged in In re Taco Bell:

	In re Taco Bell	Duggan v. Taco Bell

8 (Cf. RJN, Exs. 1 and 2.)

9 On December 2, 2011, Defendants removed the Duggan Class Action to this 10 Court. (RJN, Ex. 6.)

11 III. THE COURT SHOULD DISMISS, STAY, OR TRANSFER THIS CASE
12 TO THE EASTERN DISTRICT IN DEFERENCE TO *IN RE TACO BELL

13 A. This Court Should Apply The "First-To-File" Rule Because The Eastern 14 District In In Re Taco Bell Is Already Adjudicating Substantially Similar 15 Issues As Those Presented In This Action

16 When cases involving the same parties and issues have been filed in two 17 different courts, the first-to-file rule grants the second court the discretion to decline 18 jurisdiction over the second case in the interest of efficiency and judicial economy.

19 Pacesetter Systems, Inc. v. Medtronic, Inc., 678 F. 2d 93, 94-95 (9th Cir. 1982).
20 The rule "promotes judicial efficiency and prevents the risk of inconsistent decisions 21 that would arise from multiple litigations of identical claims." Meru Networks v.
22 Extricom Ltd., No. C-10-02021 RMW, 2010 WL 3464315, (N.D. Cal. Aug. 31, 23 2010) See, also, Sasco v. Byers, No. 08-5641 JF (RS), 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24 36886, *13 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 14, 2009) (granting defendant's motion to dismiss under 25 the first-to-file rule because claims substantially overlapped with counterclaims in a 26 first-filed action) (citations omitted). The first-to-file rule "serves the purpose of 27 promoting efficiency well and should not be disregarded lightly." See Pacesetter, 28 678 F.2d at 95 (holding that district court's decision to apply the first-to-file rule was

1 only reviewable for an abuse of discretion). "Restraint of the first-filed suit is made 2 only to prevent wrong or injustice." Kahn v. General Motors Corp., 889 F.2d 1078, 3 1081 (Fed. Cir. 1989). The Federal Circuit has made clear that District Courts 4 should give deference to the first-filed action unless there is "sound reason that 5 would make it unjust or inefficient to continue the first-filed action." Meru 6 Networks, 2010 WL 3464315 *1.

7 As part of its inherent power to control its docket, a district court may 8 dismiss, stay, or transfer a suit that duplicates another federal court suit. See Colo.
 9 River Water Conservation Dist. v. United States, 424 U.S. 800, 817 (1976) ("As 10 between [duplicative suits pending in different] federal district courts,... the general 11 principle is to avoid duplicative litigation."); Kerotest Mfg. Co. v. C-0 Two Fire 12 Equip. Co., 342 U.S. 180 (1952) (same; applied to successive suits in different 13 federal courts); Cronos Containers, Ltd. v. Amazon Lines, Ltd., 121 F. Supp. 2d 14 461, 465 (D. Md. 2000) ("[A]s a general rule, the forum where an action is first filed 15 has priority over the forum where a subsequent action arising out of the same 16 nucleus of facts is filed"). This inherent power to dismiss a duplicative lawsuit 17 fosters judicial economy and the "comprehensive disposition of litigation." Kerotest 18 Mfg. Co., 342 U.S. at 183. Exercise of the court's inherent power also serves to 19 protect defendants from "the vexation of concurrent litigation over the same subject 20 matter." Adam v. Jacobs, 950 F.2d 89, 93 (2d Cir. 1991). Thus, to protect against the 21 possibility of inconsistent rulings and the needless squandering of judicial resources, 22 a court faced with a duplicative suit should dismiss it without prejudice, stay it, or 23 transfer it.

24 The Ninth Circuit established the threshold criteria for the "first-to-file" rule 25 in Pacesetter. In applying the first-to-file rule, a court first looks at three threshold 26 factors: (1) the chronology of the two actions; (2) the similarity of the parties; and 27 (3) the similarity of the issues. Pacesetter, 678 F.2d at 95; see, also, Meru
 28 Networks, 2010 WL 3464315 *1; L. Cohen Group v. Herman Miller, Inc., No. C

1 05-4476 SI, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2301, *5-6 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 19, 2006) (granting 2 defendant's motion to transfer venue pursuant to the first-to-file rule because "a 3 complaint involving the same parties and issues has already been filed in another 4 district."); Alltrade, Inc. v. Uniwield Products, Inc., 946 F.2d 622, 625-626 (9th Cir.
 5 1991) (granting a transfer in response to defendant's motion to dismiss, stay, or 6 transfer based on the first-to-file rule). Here, as discussed fully below, all of the 7 factors warranting dismissal, stay or transfer based on the first-to-file rule are 8 present; therefore, this Court should act pursuant to the rule and dismiss or stay the 9 instant action pending the outcome of in In re Taco Bell, or transfer the case to the 10 Eastern District.

11 1. In re Taco Bell Was Filed First

12 There is no question that the actions that comprise In re Taco Bell were filed 13 before the instant action. As discussed in section II.B., supra, the Nave Class 14 Action, which includes Duggan as a named plaintiff, was consolidated with In re 15 Taco Bell on December 16, 2010. (See RJD, Exs. 3, 4, 5.) Duggan filed this action 16 in the Superior Court for the County of San Francisco on September 21, 2011.
 17 (RJD, Ex. 2.) This action was then removed to this Court on December 2, 2011.
 18 (RJD, Ex. 6.)

19 2. The Parties Are Identical

20 Taco Bell Corp. and Taco Bell of America, Inc. are the defendants in both 21 cases and Duggan is a named plaintiff in both cases.¹ Moreover, the relevant 22 putative class definitions are substantially the same and involve overlapping claims 23 periods. Specifically, in both actions, Duggan purports to represent all non-exempt 24 hourly employees in California in his class claims against Defendants. (See RJD,

25 ¹ The "identity of parties" element is also satisfied. Here, while other named 26 Plaintiffs have joined in the In re Taco Bell action, Duggan is a named Plaintiff in 27 that case and the instant matter. In parallel proceedings "[t]he rule is satisfied if 28 some of the parties in one matter are also in the other matter, regardless of whether there are additional unmatched parties in one or both matters." Intersearch Worldwide, Ltd. v. Intersearch Group, Inc., 544 F. Supp. 2d 949, 959 n.3 (N.D.
 Cal. 2008).

1 Ex. 1 at ¶¶ 23(a)-(e) and Ex. 2 at ¶¶ 16-18.) The In re Taco Bell putative class
 2 includes non-exempt California employees who worked for Defendants since 3 September 2003. (Ex. 1 at ¶¶ 23(a)-(e).) The putative class in the instant matter
 4 includes non-exempt California employees who worked for Defendants since 5 September 2007. (RJN, Ex. 2 at ¶¶ 16-18.) Accordingly, the putative class in the 6 instant matter is necessarily subsumed in the class proposed in In re Taco Bell.
 7 Simply put, the claims period of the two classes of "non-exempt hourly employees 8 in California" overlap completely. Therefore, there is no question that the parties 9 involved here substantially overlap.

10 3. The Actions Allege Virtually Identical Causes Of Action

11 The claims in both of these actions are also substantially similar. The central 12 dispute in both matters is whether non-exempt employees were properly paid wages 13 and reimbursed for expenses as required by California law. "The issues in the two 14 actions need not be identical for purposes of the first-to-file rule but must only be 15 substantially similar." See Walker v. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co., C 03656 R, 16 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7871, *7 (W.D. Wash. May 9, 2003). "[S]light differences 17 in the claims asserted do not prevent application of the rule where the underlying 18 complained of conduct is almost identical." Id. at *7-8; see, also, Sasco, 2009 U.S.
 19 Dist. LEXIS 36886 at *19 (staying case where issues were "substantially similar" as 20 they would "require adjudication of essentially the same issues raised by this 21 lawsuit"). The "first-filed" doctrine "is not a rigid or inflexible rule to be 22 mechanically applied, but rather is to be applied with a view to the dictates of sound 23 judicial administration." See Pacesetter, 678 F. 2d 95. Just as the first-to-file rule 24 does not require the actions to have identical parties, it does not dictate that the 25 actions raise identical claims. See Ward v. Follett Corp., 158 F.R.D. 645, 648-49
 26 (N.D. Cal. 1994)

27 Here, the In re Taco Bell action and the instant action allege virtually 28 identical causes of action on behalf of substantially similar putative classes. See

1 chart supra in section II.C. A comparison of the In re Taco Bell and Duggan Class 2 Action complaints makes two critical points crystal clear: 1) Duggan's claims in 3 both cases are based on allegations that Defendants failed to timely pay him and the 4 putative class all wages due and that Defendants improperly required that he and the 5 putative class incur costs for allegedly "required" shoes; and, 2) that Duggan's 6 allegations in both lawsuits arise out of the same transaction or occurrence and/or 7 nucleus of facts, specifically each pay period since September 2007, in which 8 Defendants allegedly withheld funds owed to Duggan.

9 While Duggan's reimbursement and unlawful deduction claims are couched in 10 different language, in both actions Duggan seeks the same ultimate outcome: the 11 unpaid balance of his minimum wage compensation (including interest, costs and 12 attorneys' fees), restitution of the funds withheld for required shoes (including 13 interest, costs and attorneys' fees), and statutory "waiting time" penalties based on 14 Defendants alleged failure to pay all wages due upon Duggan's termination of 15 employment (including costs and attorneys' fees) for the same pay periods.² The 16 fact that Duggan is seeking the same relief labeled as a different claim for relief 17 does not hide the fact that the issues and parties before both district courts are the 18 same. Courts apply the first-to-file rule where "the underlying complained-of 19 conduct is almost identical." Dumas v. Major League Baseball Properties, 52 F.
 20 Supp. 2d 1183, 1188-89 (S.D. Cal. 1999), vacated on other grounds, 104 F. Supp.
 21 2d 1220 (S.D. Cal. 2000). Here, the "underlying complained-of conduct" (whether 22 the Defendants have properly paid their California non-exempt employees), as well 23 as the legal standards applicable to that issue, are substantially identical between the 24 first-filed action (In re Taco Bell) and subsequently filed case (the instant matter).

25
 26 ² The Duggan Class Action Complaint surreptitiously alleges that he was employed 27 by Defendants as a non-exempt non-management Team Member from April 2009 to October 2010 and implies that Duggan is a former employee. (RJN, Ex. 2 at ¶24.)
 28 However, as demonstrated in detail in Defendants' concurrently filed Rule 12(b)(6) and 12(f) motion, Duggan is a current employee and, therefore, lacks standing to bring a statutory "waiting time" penalty claim based on his current employment.

1 The fact that different forms of relief are sought in the two lawsuits is irrelevant. If 2 it were otherwise, litigation would only end when a party's imagination could no 3 longer conceive of different theories of relief based upon the same factual 4 background. See Pacesetter, 678 F. 2d 95-96. Accordingly, because all three 5 factors of the first-to-file rule have been met, a presumption in favor of the In re 6 Taco Bell action attaches. Therefore, this action should be dismissed, stayed, or 7 transferred in favor of the first-filed In re Taco Bell action.

8 B. There Is No Reason Why To Decline To Follow The First-To-File Rule

9 A district court may decline to invoke the "first-to-file" rule only where "there 10 are special circumstances which justify giving priority to the second-filed suit or a 11 showing of a balance of circumstances favoring the second-filed suit." J. Lyons & 12 Co. Ltd. v. Republic of Tea, Inc., 892 F. Supp. 486, 490 (S.D.N.Y. 1995). Courts 13 have defined those "special circumstances" as "bad faith, anticipatory suit, and 14 forum shopping." EEOC v. Univ. of Pa., 850 F.2d 969, 972 (3d Cir. 1988); accord
 15 Mission Ins. Co. v. Puritan Fashions Corp., 706 F.2d 599, 602 n.3 (5th Cir. 1983)
 16 (finding first suit anticipatory and designed to forum-shop); Alltrade, Inc., 946 F.2d 17 at 628 (finding stay of identical litigation proper based on absence of equitable 18 considerations); First City Nat'l Bank, 878 F.2d at 79 (finding no exception to first-19 to-file rule because plaintiff failed to show "special circumstances"). None of these 20 factors apply in this case. Moreover, the instant action is only in the initial stages 21 and thus has not advanced further in litigation than the In re Taco Bell action. For 22 these reasons, In re Taco Bell is considerably ahead of the litigation posture of this 23 action. In the absence of "special circumstances," this Court should dismiss, stay, or 24 transfer this litigation. See Cent. States Indus. Supply, Inc. v. McCullough, 218 F.
 25 Supp. 2d 1073, 1091 (N.D. Iowa 2002) (" . . . in the absence of compelling 26 circumstances,' the first-filed rule should apply").

27 C. Dismissal Is Proper In The Instant Case

28 The Ninth Circuit has made clear that a second-filed duplicative lawsuit may 1 be dismissed in the interest of comity and judicial efficiency. In Pacesetter, the 2 Ninth Circuit affirmed the district court's dismissal of the second filed action when 3 "[n]o apparent bar existed to a presentation of [defendant's] claims and defenses 4 before the [first filed court]." Pacesetter, 678 F. 2d at 96. The Court determined 5 that the "original forum was capable of efficiently resolving all issues, and economic 6 use of both courts' resources resulted" from the second court's refusal to hear the 7 defendant's claims. Id. See also Washington Metro. Area Transit Auth. v.

 8 Ragonese, 617 F.2d 828, 830 (D.C. Cir. 1980) (affirming dismissal of second-filed 9 action where the first-filed action presented "a closely related question"); West Gulf 10 Maritime Assoc. v. ILA Deep Sea Local 24, South Atl. and Gulf Coast District of 11 the ILA; AFL-CIO, 751 F.2d 721, 729 (5th Cir. 1985) (dismissing an action where 12 the issues presented can be resolved in an earlier-filed action).

13 As established above, the actions involve overlapping parties and factual and 14 legal issues. Duggan could have properly asserted his claims in the In re Taco Bell 15 action. Indeed, Duggan's claim became ripe well before he filed his first lawsuit 16 against Defendants in November 2010. (See RJN, Ex. 2 at ¶42) (alleging an 17 improper wage deduction on December 17, 2007). To proceed any further in this 18 Court is a waste of the parties' and the Court's time and resources. In addition, 19 dismissal of this case would serve the policies of the "first-to-file" rule, namely, 20 comity and judicial efficiency. Therefore, the parties and this Court should not 21 undertake the cost and time associated with two litigations when one will suffice.
 22 Dismissal is the appropriate procedural cure. However, in the alternative, this 23 Court should stay this lawsuit pending the determination of the prior action.

24 D. At A Minimum, Transfer To The Eastern District Is Warranted for 25 Reasons of Comity and Judicial Economy

26 In addition, for reasons of "comity and judicial economy," Defendants and 27 this Court should not be forced to re-litigate the same issues (on behalf of the same 28 parties) that have already been brought in the first-filed In re Taco Bell action. See

1 Kelmar v. Mortgage Electronic Registration Sys., Inc., 2009 WL 1298540, at *1
 2 (N.D. Cal. 2009). For example, after years of litigation, the In re Taco Bell court 3 has already made significant rulings regarding the same putative class and claims in 4 the instant action. To have overlapping class action proceedings in different 5 districts is a grossly inefficient waste of judicial resources that will result in 6 piecemeal litigation and potentially conflicting rulings. Such wastefulness frustrates 7 the goals of the courts to conserve scarce judicial resources and promote the 8 efficient and comprehensive disposition of cases, which would be defeated if 9 multiple class actions could be brought on behalf of the same putative class 10 regarding the same alleged injury. See Peak v. Green Tree Financial Serv. Corp., 11 2000 WL 973685, at *2-3 (N.D. Cal. 2000) (holding that first-to-file rule applies to 12 class actions and dismissing second-filed class action alleging "similar issues").
 13 When the first-to-file elements are met, courts have transferred such duplicative 14 cases to the first-filed court in order to conserve judicial resources, maximize 15 efficiencies and ensure consistent rulings regarding substantially identical causes of 16 action and parties. See Kelmar, 2009 WL 1298540, at *1 (transferring 17 "substantially similar" case to the Central District pursuant to the "first-to-file rule" 18 which is a "generally recognized doctrine of federal comity which permits a district 19 court to decline jurisdiction over an action when a complaint involving the same 20 parties and issues has already been filed in another district") (citations omitted); 21 Persepolis Enter. v. United Parcel Service, Inc., 2007 WL 2669901, at *2 (N.D. Cal.
 22 2007)(transferring action when "all three factors" of the first-to-file rule were met).

23 IV. IN THE ALTERNATIVE, THIS ACTION SHOULD BE 24 TRANSFERRED TO THE EASTERN DISTRICT PER 28 U.S.C. § 1404(A)

25 Federal courts have broad discretion to transfer cases between districts: "For 26 the convenience of parties and witnesses, in the interest of justice, a district court 27 may transfer any civil action to any other district or division where it might have 28 been brought." 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). As the United States Supreme Court explained

1 more than 40 years ago, the purpose of section 1404(a) "is to prevent the waste of 2 time, energy and money and to protect litigants, witnesses and the public against 3 unnecessary inconvenience and expense." Van Dusen, 376 U.S. at 616 (internal 4 citation and quotation marks omitted). Discretionary transfers under this section 5 "should be regarded as a federal judicial housekeeping measure" directed toward 6 satisfying the concomitant goals of judicial economy and fairness. Id. at 636.

7 In deciding a transfer motion, courts first consider whether the matter "might 8 have been brought" in the district to which transfer is sought. See Metz v. U.S. Life 9 Ins. Co. in City of N.Y., 674 F. Supp. 2d 1141, 1145 (C.D. Cal. 2009). If satisfied, 10 courts next consider whether a transfer would advance any one of three statutory 11 factors: (1) the convenience of the parties; (2) the convenience of witnesses; or (3) 12 the interest of justice. Id. While section 1404(a) calls for an "individualized, case-13 by-case consideration" of these factors in each action, Jones v. GNC Franchising, 14 Inc., 211 F.3d 495, 498 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Stewart Org. v. Ricoh Corp., 487 15 U.S. 22, 29 (1988)), the main factor typically to be considered is the interest of 16 justice. See Regents of the Univ. of Cal. v. Eli Lilly & Co., 119 F.3d 1559, 1565 17 (Fed. Cir. 1997). Indeed, "consideration of the interest of justice, which includes 18 judicial economy, 'may be determinative to a particular transfer motion, even if the 19 convenience of the parties and witnesses might call for a different result.'" Id.

20 Transfer to the Eastern District is appropriate in this case because it will serve 21 the interest of justice. As explained, this action, which could have been brought in 22 the Eastern District in the first place, essentially duplicates the In re Taco Bell 23 litigation. The Eastern District already has made substantive decisions in In re Taco 24 Bell - including denying the plaintiffs' motion for class certification for waiting time 25 penalties (the same claim asserted in this action). To litigate this derivative action in 26 this District makes no sense because, at minimum, the Court and the parties would 27 have to duplicate efforts already made in In re Taco Bell and, worse, the Court 28 would risk issuing inconsistent rulings in a substantially similar lawsuit involving

1 identical parties, including absent putative class members. This Court should 2 perform "judicial housekeeping" and send this litigation to the Eastern District.

3 As a named plaintiff and interim class counsel in the In re Taco Bell matter, 4 Duggan and Initiative Legal Group cannot genuinely argue that they would be 5 "inconvenienced" by transferring this action a relatively short distance from this 6 District to the Eastern District, especially when they are litigating the same issues in 7 the Eastern District. Moreover, any claim of "inconvenience" would pale next to the 8 interest of judicial economy served by transfer.

9 A. This Action Could Have Been Brought In The Eastern District

10 Whether the instant case "might have been brought" in the transferee court 11 (the Eastern District) is a statutory prerequisite to the transfer of venue. 28 U.S.C. § 12 1404(a). The Supreme Court has interpreted this provision to require that the 13 transferee court have jurisdiction over the parties and the dispute, and that venue be 14 proper there at the time suit is filed. See Hoffman v. Blaski, 363 U.S. 335, 343-44 15 (1960). Here, there is no question that the Eastern District: 1) has personal 16 jurisdiction over the parties; 2) has subject matter jurisdiction over plaintiff's claims; 17 and, 3) that the Eastern District is a proper venue.

18 Personal jurisdiction in federal court is determined as a matter of the forum 19 state's local law. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(k)(1)(A). Here, both the transferor court 20 (this District) and the transferee court (the Eastern District) are located in the same 21 state, and the same law applies. Thus, insofar as this Court has personal jurisdiction, 22 so too does the Eastern District. In particular, plaintiff avers that he is a resident of 23 California and that his causes of action arise out of Defendants' contacts with 24 plaintiff in California. Personal jurisdiction is unquestioned. See generally Burger 25 King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 473 (1985) ("[A] forum legitimately may 26 exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident who 'purposefully directs' his 27 activities toward forum residents.").

28 Subject matter jurisdiction also is proper in the Eastern District for the same

1 reason that it is proper before this Court: federal diversity jurisdiction, as amended
 2 by the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d), extends to this suit 3 because there is minimal diversity between the putative class and Defendants; the 4 putative class consists of hundreds of members; and the amount in controversy
 5 exceeds $5 million dollars. (RJN, Ex. 6.)

6 Finally, venue is proper before the Eastern District because Defendants are a 7 resident there for purposes of the federal venue statute. See 28 U.S.C. § 1391(a). A 8 corporation is a resident of "any judicial district" where it would be subject to 9 personal jurisdiction if the district were a separate state. Id. at § 1391(c). Here, it is 10 undisputed that Defendants do business throughout California, including the Eastern 11 District, and that Plaintiff alleges that the events giving rise to his claims occurred 12 statewide. Because Defendants have sufficient "contacts" with the Eastern District 13 for purposes of personal jurisdiction, venue is proper there. 28 U.S.C. § 1391(c).

14 B. This Action Should Be Transferred To The Eastern District

15 Once it has been established that litigation "might have been brought" in the 16 transferee district, the decision to transfer venue is committed to the sound 17 discretion of the trial court. Commodity Futures Trading Comm'n v. Savage, 611 18 F.2d 270, 279 (9th Cir. 1979) ("Weighing of the factors for and against transfer 19 involves subtle considerations and is best left to the discretion of the trial judge.").
 20 Of "predominant importance" to this analysis, as noted above, is "[t]he question of 21 which forum will better serve the interest of justice." Wireless Consumers Alliance 22 v. T-Mobile USA, Inc., 2003 WL 22387598, at *4 (N.D. Cal. 2003) (citing Pratt v.
 23 Rowland, 769 F. Supp. 1128, 1133 (N.D. Cal. 1991)). When considering the 24 "interest of justice," courts generally look at which forum will best serve judicial 25 economy and efficiency, as well as which forum has a direct relationship with the 26 parties and causes of action in the lawsuit. See Decker Coal Co. v. Commonwealth 27 Edison Co., 805 F.2d 834, 843 (9th Cir. 1986). In this case, both the transferor 28 forum (this District) and the transferee forum (the Eastern District) have a direct

1 relationship with the parties and claims at issue, but matters of judicial economy 2 strongly tip the scale toward transfer to the Eastern District.

3 1. The Eastern District Has Invested Significant Time and Resources
 4 into In re Taco Bell

5 This litigation has been before this Court for only a few days, but In re Taco 6 Bell has been in the Eastern District for several years. As detailed above, in section 7 II.B., since September 2007, the Eastern District started handling the cases that 8 constitute In re Taco Bell, which raised substantially similar wage-and-hour claims 9 as this action, purported to represent a substantially similar class of non-exempt 10 employees as this action, and sought to recover the same forms of relief as sought in 11 this action. If this duplicative action, which involves the same claims, parties, and 12 counsel, now were to proceed in this District anew, this Court would not only risk 13 issuing inconsistent rulings on the same claims between the same parties, but also 14 would have to needlessly reinvent the wheel in this litigation, coming up to speed on 15 a whole set of facts, legal issues, and discovery matters with which the Eastern 16 District Court is already intimately familiar. Requiring this Court to expend such 17 resources, while at the same time letting the Eastern District's time and accrued 18 knowledge go to waste, would run counter to the very purpose of discretionary 19 transfers under section 1404(a). See Dorado v. Laborers Pension Trust Fund for N.
 20 Cal., No. CV F 06-0394 AWI LJO, 2006 WL 2402006, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 18, 21 2006) ("Transfer rulings under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) generally turn on ... whether 22 transfer will avoid duplicative litigation, effect judicial economy and prevent waste 23 of time and money[.]").

24 This Court's decision in Wireless Consumers Alliance, Inc. v. T-Mobile USA, 25 Inc., supra, is particularly instructive. In that case, a nonprofit group filed a putative 26 class action lawsuit against T-Mobile in Alameda County Superior Court on behalf 27 of "the general subscribing public," alleging that terms in T-Mobile's customer 28 service agreement ("CSA") violated the California Business and Professions Code.

1 T-Mobile removed the action to the Northern District of California, and 2 subsequently moved to transfer venue to the Central District. T-Mobile sought 3 transfer to this District because, in the prior year, T-Mobile subscribers represented 4 by the same counsel had filed an identical class action lawsuit in Orange County 5 Superior Court, Gatton v. T-Mobile USA, Inc., alleging the same violations of the 6 Business and Professions Code, which T-Mobile removed to the Central District.
 7 The plaintiffs in the Gatton action dismissed their claims after Judge David Carter 8 granted T-Mobile's motion to compel arbitration.

9 In its motion to transfer the later-filed Wireless Consumers action to the 10 Eastern District, T-Mobile argued that "the current action is Gatton in disguise, with 11 the same plaintiffs and attorneys, challenging the same provisions of T-Mobile's 12 CSA, and alleging verbatim violations of the same Business and Professions 13 Codes," that "plaintiff double-filed its case to evade adverse rulings by the Central 14 District and to give Gatton another chance," and that the "interest of justice" favored 15 transfer to the Eastern District. 2003 WL 22387598, at *2. Judge Patel agreed, 16 recognizing that "[t]ransfer is proper if a like action has been brought by the same 17 plaintiff against the same defendant in another district, or another division of the 18 same district." Id. at *4 (citing Jacobson v. Hughes Aircraft Co., 105 F.3d 1288, 19 1301 (9th Cir. 1997)). Judge Patel specifically found transfer appropriate in that 20 case because Wireless Consumers and Gatton were "intimately related, if not 21 identical;" they had "identical plaintiffs, namely all T-Mobile subscribers" and 22 "nearly all of the claims" in Wireless Consumers "were copied verbatim from 23 Gatton." 2003 WL 22387598, at *5. Given this similarity, Judge Carter, the 24 presiding judge in Gatton, was "almost guaranteed" to receive Wireless Consumers 25 following transfer, which would "save judicial resources" and avoid "the risk of 26 conflicting rulings on the same is-sues." Id. at *6. As this Court reasoned, "time 27 and effort" should not be "wasted in the course of rehearing and reestablishing the 28 facts and circumstances of this case," just to "reiterate what Judge Carter had

1 already stated." Id.

2 Numerous decisions are in accord with this Court's reasoning in Wireless 3 Consumers. Courts consistently hold that where the transferee forum has already 4 handled similar litigation between the same parties, transfer is appropriate. E.g., Eli 5 Lilly & Co., 119 F.3d at 1565 (finding no abuse of discretion in transfer of venue; 6 "[T]he interest of judicial economy may favor transfer to a court that has become 7 familiar with the issues."); Madani v. Shell Oil Co., No. C07-04296 MJJ, 2008 WL 8 268986, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 30, 2008) (granting motion to transfer class action to 9 Central District of California because that court had presided over similar class 10 action involving same parties for "more than three years" and thus was "more 11 familiar" with "underlying factual contentions ... common to both actions," while the 12 Northern District "would have to invest significant time and resources to reach a 13 similar level of familiarity"); Nutrition & Fitness, Inc. v. Blue Stuff, Inc., 264 F.
 14 Supp. 2d 357, 363 (W.D.N.C. 2003) (granting motion to transfer case to Western 15 District of Oklahoma based on related litigation there; "[I]t is ... expedient to allow a 16 court that is already familiar with [plaintiff's] essential arguments to adjudicate this 17 case as well."); LG Elecs., Inc. v. Advance Creative Computer Corp., 131 F. Supp.
 18 2d 804, 815 (E.D. Va. 2001) (granting motion to transfer because "very similar" 19 actions had been adjudicated there and that court had "already invested substantial 20 time and energy" in those "previously litigated claims").

21 The rationale adopted in Wireless Consumers and these similar decisions 22 directly applies here. This putative class action (brought by the same named 23 plaintiff and class counsel) raises substantially similar overlapping wage-and-hour 24 claims as those brought in In re Taco Bell and purports to represent a substantially 25 similar class of non-exempt employees. If transferred to the Eastern District, it is 26 highly likely that this action would be re-assigned to the judge presiding over In re 27 Taco Bell, thereby preserving the judicial resources already expended on that 28 litigation and avoiding the risk of inconsistent rulings. On the other hand, keeping

1 the case in this District would force this Court to start from scratch, duplicating time 2 and effort already invested by the Eastern District, and needlessly wasting this 3 Court's limited resources. On those grounds, the "interest of justice" clearly supports 4 a transfer. See Samsung Elecs. Co. v. Rambus Inc., 386 F. Supp. 2d 708, 722 (E.D.
 5 Va. 2005) ("Judicial economy and the interest of justice favor a venue which has 6 already committed judicial resources to the contested issues and is familiar with the 7 facts of the case.").

8 2. This Court Has No Greater Interest in This Litigation Than The 9 Eastern District

10 In addition to judicial economy, courts reviewing a transfer motion also 11 consider which forum has a greater interest in resolving the parties' dispute. See 12 Decker Coal Co., 805 F.2d at 843. The "interest of justice" may favor one particular 13 judicial district over another if that forum has a direct relationship with the parties 14 and causes of action. Id. This analysis generally focuses on the parties' "contacts 15 with the forum" and where the relevant events in the com-plaint took place, e.g., 16 "where the relevant agreements were negotiated and executed." Jones, 211 F.3d at 17 498-99. While a particular forum's connection to the litigation may affect the 18 "interest of justice" in some cases, it is of no consequence here. Duggan alleges that 19 Defendants have violated wage-and-hour laws throughout the State of California, 20 including the Eastern District, and proposes a statewide class of non-exempt 21 employees on that basis. Neither this District nor the Eastern District has any 22 greater interest in resolving this dispute than the other, as both have a direct 23 relationship with the parties and claims. See, e.g., Italian Colors Rest. v. Am.
 24 Express Co., No. C 03-3719 SI, 2003 WL 22682482, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 10, 25 2003) (rejecting plaintiff's argument that local interest favored denying transfer of 26 class action because "more of the relevant... agreements" were formed in the 27 transferor forum; plaintiff "purport [ed] to act on behalf of a nationwide class of 28 merchants," and some of those merchants entered into "identical agreements" in the

1 transferee forum). Accordingly, because the "relationship" factor is neutral in this 2 case and matters of judicial economy strongly favor the Eastern District, the Court 3 should transfer this action to that forum in the "interest of justice."

4 C. Transfer Will Not Prejudice or Unduly Inconvenience Duggan

5 Before granting a motion to transfer venue in the "interest of justice," courts 6 generally consider whether transfer will unduly prejudice or inconvenience the 7 opposing party. See 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). Factors reviewed under this analysis 8 include plaintiff's choice of forum, the difference in travel time and litigation costs, 9 and the availability of witnesses and sources of proof in the transferee forum. See 10 Jones, 211 F.3d at 498-99. None of these considerations tips the scale toward this 11 District retaining this action.

12 1. Plaintiff's Choice of Forum Is Entitled to Little Deference

13 A plaintiff's choice of forum is generally given substantial weight in deciding 14 the balance of convenience and the propriety of transfer. See Decker Coal Co., 805 15 F.2d at 843. However, the weight of the plaintiff's selection is not boundless. More 16 importantly, "the Ninth Circuit, 'like other courts, has noted that the weight to be 17 given the plaintiff's choice of forum is discounted where the action is a class 18 action.'" Metz, 674 F. Supp. 2d at 1146 (quoting Saleh v. Titan Corp., 361 F. Supp.
 19 2d 1152, 1157 (S.D. Cal. 2005)); see, also, Lou v. Belzberg, 834 F.2d 730, 739 (9th 20 Cir.1987) ("[W]hen an individual brings a derivative suit or represents a class, the 21 named plaintiff's choice of forum is given less weight.").

22 Here, Duggan seeks to represent a putative class of current and former non-23 exempt hourly employees throughout the State of California. His individual choice 24 of forum therefore receives very little deference, and in any event, does not override 25 the countervailing interests of judicial economy that strongly favor transfer of this 26 action to the Eastern District. Cf. In re TS Tech USA Corp., 551 F.3d 1315, 1320
 27 (Fed. Cir. 2008) (reversing denial of motion to transfer venue where trial court 28 "erred in giving inordinate weight to the plaintiff's choice of venue").

1 2. Litigating in the Eastern District Will Not Unduly Burden Duggan

2 First, as with his choice of forum, Duggan's residence as a class representative 3 is entitled to little deference in the transfer analysis.³ The fact that this District is 4 Duggan's "home forum" and therefore more convenient for him personally is 5 immaterial. See, e.g., Georgouses v. NaTec Resources, Inc., 963 F. Supp. 728, 730
 6 (N.D. Ill. 1997) (granting motion to transfer venue for class action lawsuit; 7 "[B]ecause plaintiff alleges a class action, plaintiff's home forum is irrelevant."); IBJ 8 Schroder Bank & Trust Co. v. Mellon Bank, N.A., 730 F. Supp. 1278, 1282
 9 (S.D.N.Y. 1990) (same; "[T]he accidental residence of the named plaintiff [in a 10 representative or class action] is discounted in weighing the transfer factors.").

11 Second, any inconvenience for Duggan of traveling to the Eastern District 12 from this District would not override the otherwise prevailing factors in support of 13 transfer. See Eli Lilly & Co., 119 F.3d at 1565. Convenience of the parties is a 14 "subordinate" consideration where, as here, the "interest of justice" and judicial 15 economy strongly favor transfer to another district. Wireless Consumers Alliance, 16 2003 WL 22387598, at *4. Indeed, Defendants are unaware of any other "cost" that 17 Duggan would bear following transfer to the Eastern District, other than travel to the 18 courthouse. This "inconvenience" does not outweigh the savings in judicial 19 economy that will result from transfer. See Reese v. CNH Am. LLC, 574 F.3d 315, 20 320 (6th Cir. 2009) (convenience of parties and class members outweighed by 21 interest of justice where trial judge in transferee venue was handling an identical 22 case and therefore had a "leg up on the legal and factual issues presented").
 23 Moreover, such inconvenience cannot really be an "inconvenience" when Duggan is 24 already litigation in the Eastern District, and has been for some time.

25 Third, and perhaps most importantly, transfer of this action to the Eastern 26 District will not prejudice Duggan's ability to "access" relevant sources of proof or 27 "compel attendance of unwilling non-party witnesses." See Jones, 211 F.3d at 498-

28 ³ Duggan resides in San Francisco County (RJN, Ex. 2 at ¶7)

1 99. Duggan alleges statewide wage-and-hour violations and seeks to represent a 2 putative class of current and former non-exempt Taco Bell employees throughout 3 the State of California. Any relevant witnesses, documents or other discoverable 4 sources of proof related to Taco Bell's statewide wage-and-hour policies and 5 practices will be available to Duggan through discovery requests propounded on 6 Defendants, without subpoena, just as they would be in this District.

7 Furthermore, to the extent Duggan may seek to compel attendance of 8 unwilling, non-party witnesses with knowledge of his individual claims, such 9 witnesses will be just as accessible by subpoena power following transfer to the 10 Eastern District. For local depositions, non-party witnesses may be served with 11 subpoenas issued by this District. See Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 45(b)(2)(A). For trial, a 12 subpoena issued by the Eastern District will carry the same force and effect as one 13 issued in this District. California has a state statute permitting statewide service on 14 residents, see Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 1989, so non-party witnesses in this District 15 will be subject to service of trial subpoenas issued in the Eastern District. See Fed.
 16 R. Civ. Proc. 45(b)(2)(C). Accordingly, transfer is appropriate under 28 U.S.C.
 17 section 1404(a).

18 V. CONCLUSION

19 For the foregoing reasons, in the interest of judicial economy and comity, 20 Defendants Taco Bell Corp. and Taco Bell of America, Inc. respectfully request that 21 the present action be dismissed, or in the alternative stayed or transferred, in 22 deference to the In re Taco Bell action in the Eastern District.
